Social Dialogue – Decent Work Programme

2nd Call for Project Proposals Estonia

The programme “Social Dialogue – Decent Work” (hereafter referred to as “the Programme”) shall contribute to the general objectives of the Norway Grants 2014-2021, respectively to the reduction of economic and social disparities in the European Economic Area and to strengthening bilateral relations between Norway and the Beneficiary States.

The objective of the Programme is strengthened tripartite cooperation between employer organisations, trade unions and public authorities and the promotion of decent work. It will support social dialogue, contribute to ensure that Beneficiary States are better equipped to deal with the challenges following high unemployment and to establish decent work practices, and improve the enforcement of legislation and policies on decent work and social dialogue.

The Programme will also seek to stimulate and develop long-term bilateral cooperation between Norway and all the Beneficiary States covered by the Programme (Bulgaria, Croatia, Cyprus, the Czech Republic, Estonia, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Malta, Poland, Romania, Slovakia and Slovenia).

Norway has a strong tradition of tripartite consultation, bringing together workers, employers and the government on various levels in formulating and negotiating labour standards and policies. Bilateral cooperation plays a very strong role in the Programme, with the opportunity for close involvement of Norwegian social partners, sharing expertise and experience. The fund operator can assist project promoters in Estonia in identifying possible Norwegian partners.

One important aspect of improving social dialogue is to get public authorities more involved in a structured and constructive way. Therefore, the Programme addresses tripartite cooperation and encourages cooperation between public authorities in the Beneficiary States and relevant public authorities in Norway, e.g. on enforcement of labour law and on the fight against work-related crime.

The Programme in Estonia is expected to reach the following three outcomes: (1) Improved social dialogue and cooperation, (2) Enhanced implementation of the decent work agenda (fair and decent working conditions), and, (3) Facilitated access to employment.

- Improved social dialogue and cooperation - the focus is to strengthen social dialogue and its effect. Projects can range from very direct measures, e.g. set up structures for social dialogue and support the conclusion of collective agreements, to more indirect measures like creating a social dialogue-friendly environment, e.g. for discussing undeclared work and social dumping. Projects can also focus on increasing the capacity of national social partners to take part in EU level social dialogue, and to familiarise the players with EU legislation and the impact it has on their work.
- Enhanced implementation of the decent work agenda (fair and decent working conditions) - the focus is to finance projects at national and sector level with the objective to use bipartite and tripartite dialogue in the implementation of the decent work agenda. The aim is to increase the number of employees and enterprises that have improved decent work arrangements. The programme will raise awareness of the benefits of decent work, e.g. work-life balance, gender equality and non-discrimination, attitudes on health and safety, knowledge about rights and obligations and the fight against undeclared work and social dumping (work-related crime). The programme will support enforcement of national regulations related to the decent work agenda, awareness-raising activities and training on decent work topics addressing e.g. social partner staff, company health and safety officers, and labour inspectors. In addition, cooperation between public authorities in the Beneficiary States and Norway, particularly between labour inspection authorities, will be supported.
- Facilitated access to employment - the target is to improve the cooperation between the social partners and public authorities on labour market challenges by supporting activities facilitating access to employment, including for young people and disadvantaged groups like women, elderly and disabled people. These activities can take the form of active labour market policy measures, life-long learning and activities related to labour market challenges (experience-sharing and awareness-raising).

It is important to note that applicants¹ (project promoters²) must choose one of these outcomes as the main outcome for the project and organise the budget of the project accordingly. The project could contribute to reaching elements of the other outcomes as well, and this should be reflected in the project description. In accordance with the published Project Assessment Criteria and Methodology, extra points will be given to projects contributing to reach outcome 3.

Overheads are considered to have been incurred when they are recorded on the accounts of the project promoter.

The project promoter's internal accounting and audit procedures must permit direct reconciliation of the expenditures and revenue declared in respect of the project with the corresponding accounting statements and supporting documents.

1.5.3 Detailed eligibility provisions

1.5.3.1 Eligible direct expenditures

The eligible direct expenditures for a project are those expenditures which are identified by the project promoter and/or the project partner, in accordance with their accounting principles and usual internal rules, as specific expenditures directly linked to the implementation of the project and which can therefore be booked to it directly. ANNEX III – Glossary of terms

The following terms used in the present Call shall be understood as follows:

Social Dialogue: according to the International Labour Organisation (ILO), social dialogue includes all types of negotiation, consultation or information-sharing among representatives of governments, employers and workers or between those of employers and workers on issues of common interest relating to economic and social policy. Social dialogue can be bipartite, between workers and employers, or tripartite, including government.

Decent Work: the concept of decent work is one which is predominantly applied in the ILO context to developing countries and not so often in the EU context, where the terms “quality work and employment” and “fair and decent working conditions” are more commonly used. However, the idea remains the same: workers need a job which gives them enough salary, decent working hours and conditions, the possibility to join a union to represent their rights, and a job in which they are protected by individual and collective labour law.

Work-related crime: activities that breach laws relating to pay and working conditions, social security and taxation. Related terms include social dumping, undeclared work, illegal working contracts and general compliance with labour law. Combating work-related crime, including cross-border work-related crime, is a priority for the Norwegian Government.

Active Labour Market Policy: the main goal of active labour market policies (ALMPs) is to increase the employment opportunities for job seekers and to improve matching between jobs (vacancies) and workers (i.e. the unemployed). According to the OECD, ALMPs include spending on public employment services and administration, labour market training, special programmes for youth when in transition from school to work, labour market programmes to provide or promote employment for unemployed and other persons (excluding young and disabled persons) and special programmes for the disabled.

Employers' organisations: bodies designed to organise and advance the collective interests that employers have in the labour market

Trade unions: association of workers in a particular trade, industry, or company, created for the purpose of securing improvements in pay, benefits, working conditions, or social and political status through collective bargaining

Public authorities and institutions that have statutory roles related to decent work or tripartite cooperation: Examples of such entities are national labour inspectorates and directorates with responsibilities related to decent work

Organisations of public authorities that have within their mandate the promotion of decent work or tripartite dialogue: An example of such an entity is an association of local and regional authorities which act as an employer organisation for local governments and conducts collective bargaining on behalf of its members

Business and sector associations: associations and federations representing specific sector interests of business and industry and which participate in social dialogue at sectoral level

Non-governmental organisations (NGOs): a non-profit voluntary organisation established as a legal entity, having a non-commercial purpose, independent of local, regional and central government, public entities, political parties and commercial organisations. Religious institutions and political parties are not considered NGOs.'

Training provider: a private or public legal entity, including education and research entities. When a project includes training activities and the project promoter and projects partners do not have their own training departments, a training provider could be included as a project partner to ensure quality training.

Project: Specific and clearly identifiable activities with outcomes and outputs related to the programme

Project contract: an agreement between the Fund Operator and the Project Promoter regulating the implementation of a particular project.

Project grant: a grant awarded by a Fund Operator to a Project Promoter to implement a project.

Project Promoter: legal person having the responsibility for initiating, preparing and implementing a project.

Applicant: legal person applying for a grant.
