Over the years, Innovation Norway has conducted several Optima studies across different markets. The main objective of these studies is to get a better understanding of Norway’s key markets.

This study is conducted using Censydiam, Ipsos research tool for motivational research.

The approach identifies the underlying physiological needs consumers seek to satisfy when travelling abroad on holiday.

The purpose of the research:

- TO IDENTIFY THE BEST MEANS OF STRENGTHENING THE FUTURE OF THE VISIT NORWAY BRAND AND NORWAY AS A TOURIST DESTINATION
- TO UNDERSTAND THE COMPETITIVE LANDSCAPE AND TARGET NEEDS TO PROMOTE INNOVATION AND COMMUNICATION

The research was conducted in Germany, Russia and the Netherlands in 2011/2012.

We have conducted four focus groups and 1,200 web interviews in each country with respondents that have been on holiday abroad during the last two years.
Executive summary - Main findings

- Fundamental meaning of going on holiday across the three markets
  - In the quantitative study, we found that there are some common denominators across all types of holiday and across all segments:
  - Holidays abroad must always help people to escape from their daily lives!
  - The core of all holidays is about escapism, discovering new and interesting places and being together. All holidays must fulfil these criteria regardless of the type of holiday.

- The segments
  - The research has identified eight motivational segments; Liberation, Sharing Good Times, Togetherness, Harmony, Routine, Broadening your Horizon, Luxury and Exploration.

- Across the three markets Norway is best positioned in two motivational segments:
  - Exploration:
    - Emotional benefits sought by the tourist: Gives me rich experiences, Discover new and interesting places, Escape from my hectic daily life and Enrich my view of the world
    - Personality of the destinations: Adventurous, Explorative, Unique, Active and Friendly
  - Broadening your Horizon:
    - Emotional benefits sought by the tourist: Discover new and interesting places, Broaden my horizon, Broaden my knowledge, Enrich my view of the world and Rich experiences
    - Personality of the destinations: Friendly, Authentic, Open-minded, Relaxed and Cultivated
Executive summary - Main findings

- Assessment of Norway
  - Emotional benefits associated with Norway: ‘Allows me to discover new and interesting places’, ‘Helps me to escape from my hectic daily life’, ‘Gives me rich experiences’, ‘Allows me to broaden my horizon’ and ‘Enriches my view of the world’
  - Destination features associated with Norway: ‘Has beautiful nature’, ‘Has nature that offers opportunities for discovery’, ‘Is not too warm’, ‘Has unspoiled nature’ and ‘Has quiet environments’
  - Activities associated with Norway: ‘Observe beauty of nature’, ‘Observe natural phenomenon’, ‘Experience the wilderness’, ‘Do winter activities’ and ‘Visit the countryside’

- 21% of the Germans in the sample have visited Norway, which is lower than for Sweden and Denmark.

- However Norway is the most frequently considered Scandinavian holiday destination in Germany. This demonstrates that Norway has unrealised potential.

- 34% of the Germans in the sample are considering going on holiday to Norway in the next three years.
Executive summary – Conclusions

- Despite a slightly differentiated position compared to competing destinations, Norway does not attract a lot of (repeat) visitors
  - The proportion of people who have ever visited Norway is low compared to other destinations
  - Repeat visiting is also lower than average

- Norway does not clearly 'own' any motivational segment
  - In Germany, Norway is often associated with Exploration and Broadening your Horizon.
  - But the strength of this association is relatively weak
1a. Introduction

Background and who we spoke to in the research
The purpose of the research:

TO IDENTIFY THE BEST MEANS OF STRENGTHENING THE FUTURE OF THE NORWEGIAN TRAVEL INDUSTRY

TO UNDERSTAND THE COMPETITIVE LANDSCAPE AND TARGET NEEDS TO PROMOTE INNOVATION AND COMMUNICATION

In order to do so, this research provides answers to the two questions:

- What is the ideal holiday?
- How are destinations (brands) positioned?
Evaluate / Confirm current direction for Norway

Cross-country

- Germany
- Russia
- The Netherlands

Choose target for each holiday type

- Skiing
- Camping
- Active holiday
- Sightseeing/roundtrip
- Experience nature
- City trip/city break
- Cottage
What have we done ....

We have created qualitative hypothesis
four focus groups in each country

We have validated them quantitatively
1,200 interviews online in each country

Who did we speak to:
To be included in the study, the respondent had to have been on a holiday abroad that included at least three overnight stays during the past 24 months, and where the trip was not paid for by their employer.

The respondent also had to be interested in going on holidays to experience either; dramatic, wild nature and beautiful scenery, or outdoor activities, e.g. skiing, hiking or cycling, or clean and unspoiled nature, or local art, culture and lifestyle.

This of course limits the sample somewhat, as this is not a study of the total population in each market. The reason for this screening is that we wanted to interview prospective Norwegian tourists.
Demographics of the survey sample compared with the total population

In this report, we also look at regional differences within Germany. The following ‘bundesländer’ constitute the regions:

North
- Schleswig-Holstein
- Hamburg
- Bremen
- Lower Saxony

  \( n = 925 \)

South
- Baden-Württemberg
- Bavaria

  \( n = 1850 \)

East
- Berlin
- Brandenburg
- Mechlenburg-Vorpomern
- Saxony
- Saxony-Anhalt
- Thuringia

  \( n = 1320 \)

West
- Hesse
- North Rhine-Westphalia
- Rhineland-Palatinate
- Saarland

  \( n = 2110 \)

As this study is occasion based the \( n \) refers to number of travels in each region. Number of travels in total for the German sample is 6205.
1b. Introduction

Basic motivations for going on holiday
The same person, but different situations and different motivations

As consumers, we often have different needs depending on the situation. This also applies to holidays. A weekend getaway with a partner has to fulfill different needs than a skiing weekend with friends. This report is, therefore, based on different occasions – by occasion we mean different holidays.
To get inside the consumer’s mind, we need to go deeper. 20% Conscious. 80% Sub-conscious. 80% of human behaviour is explained by the sub-conscious. We therefore need to use methods that enable us to dig deeper into consumers’ minds, to identify those layers of information that really govern human behaviour. This is why we have chosen the Censydiam model for this project.
Having a compass or a map helps us to navigate the land of motivations

The research helps us to do this...
The Censydiam model

We have identified eight motivational segments. They represent the different basic motivations for why people go on holidays.
The Censydiam model has two main dimensions; the personal and the social.

- The vertical axis is the personal dimension

On this side of the axis, we have people who approach the ideal holiday abroad in an open manner. They want to enjoy and explore the new world. They surrender to the new surroundings and enjoy them to the fullest. Within this new world, behaviour is more impulsive.

On the other side of the axis, we have people who have a more controlled and restrained approach to the ideal holiday. Going on holiday for them is accompanied by feelings of insecurity. They try to control these feelings by setting rules and boundaries. A lot of planning is involved in this structured way of going on holiday.
The horizontal axis is the second dimension:
- The social dimension

On this side of the axis, we have people who approach the ideal holiday in an individual manner and try to distinguish themselves from their surroundings by means of this new world. They use this escape to deliver a certain performance. These people are relatively active and have a need for expansion, cultivation and discovery.

On the other side of the axis, we have people who are more socially involved when escaping into a new world. They try to shape the new world in a relaxed manner. It is a more passive escape in which being together, being sociable and atmosphere are most relevant. Mental relaxation is extremely important.
1c. Introduction

How these needs and motivations can be identified?
Background to the project
- Why do people travel?

This project aims to identify the underlying physiological needs consumers seek to satisfy when travelling abroad on holiday.

- People travel abroad because the holiday or destination in some sense serves certain needs. These needs may be fundamentally physiological (e.g. a place to sleep = hotel).
- But when several options can satisfy the same need, a role for branding arises. People use holidays to satisfy more psychological needs and people choose types of holidays to reflect their personality, convey who they are to others, fulfil a deeper meaning in life, reinforce their own self-concept etc.
- Hence, psychological needs play an important role in consumers’ decision-making and influence consumer behaviour.
- In this context, a brand will succeed if it addresses a psychological need better than other brands.
- Hence, stakeholders in the tourism industry need to examine their branding.
  - What fundamental psychological need should we target?
  - How can we differentiate our brands (products/services) from our competitors’?
People don’t buy products – they want to satisfy certain needs.

We need to shift the focus from products to the tourists (by putting people first).

In order to move from a product focus to putting consumers first, we need to look at WHY people go on holiday. WHAT are they seeking? HOW does the holiday experience represent them? And WHAT connotations are attached to different holiday experiences?

A motivational approach gives a much broader, richer starting point for engaging in conversation with our tourists.

Instead of product focus...

...focus on motivational benefit

...or personality

'Rorbuferie'/ holiday in a fisherman’s cabin

Share good times with others

Active, explorative and adventurous

This report will give you an insight into the basic psychological needs that you as a stakeholder in the tourism industry need to know about in order to optimise your communication and product development.
We need to understand 'who is doing what, when and where' in the holiday market by answering the question 'why'.

Research objective:
- To identify the needs that people try to satisfy with holidays abroad.
- To systematically explore the interrelation with the other 'Ws' defining the context of behaviour.

1. WHY do people go on holiday? What are their needs and motivations?
2. WHO? What differences can we identify with respect to demographics?
3&4. WHEN and WHERE? At which specific OCCASIONS do the motivations occur?
5. WHAT? Which destinations best satisfy the different motivations today? What ‘qualities’ do these destinations have? Which motivations remain relatively less satisfied?

What do we ask about?

- How is Norway positioned as a holiday destination?
- The competitive landscape (Norway vs. other countries)
  - What an ideal holiday looks like
- How Norway should be positioned (in relation to communication, products and service provision)
- Gaps where Norway has weaknesses either in people’s perception of Norway or in relation to their actual holiday experiences

* People have different needs depending on the situation. This report is therefore based on different occasions, rather than different individuals, by occasion we mean different holidays
The ideal holiday can be explained by four different factors:

Personality of the destination
- Active
- Authentic
- Relaxed

Emotional benefits sought
- Discover new and interesting places
- Escape from hectic daily life
- Share good times with others

A set of activities
- Skiing
- Visit museums
- Observe nature
- Saltwater fishing

Destination features
- Friendly people
- Beautiful nature
- Interesting sights
Explanation of the four factors of an ideal holiday

- Emotional benefits sought (emotional)
  - An emotional benefit is often a complex, positive statement that our respondents are able to make about themselves due to their use of and attachment to Norway/other destinations and their features.
  - Examples: A holiday in Norway allows me to share good times with others, a holiday in Norway allows me to discover new and interesting places.

- Personality of the destination (emotional)
  - A destination (brand) personality is usually expressed as an adjective. The purpose of personality attributes is to help personify the destination, give life to it and to give it a distinctive 'brand voice'.
  - Examples: Fresh, adventurous, safe, relaxed, soothing, active etc.

- To give content to the emotional segments and measure the perception and performance of the destinations, we also asked about the activities and characteristics of destinations.

- Set of activities (functional)
  - Examples: Fishing, skiing, hiking

- Destination features (functional)
  - Qualities and characteristics of a destination
  - Examples: Has friendly people, has beautiful nature
Using the ideal holiday to understand basic needs for going on holiday

Understanding the four different factors of a holiday (emotional benefits, personality, activities and destination features) is a way of decoding a holiday.

Most human behaviour is explained by the sub-conscious. We should, therefore, use emotional factors to understand our needs and motivations.

The segments in this report are defined by statistically grouping (clustering) the emotional benefits sought and the personality of the ideal holiday on a given occasion.
2. Fundamental meaning of going on holiday
We start with cultural context because it is vital for understanding and communicating with the German market

- Culture is all aspects of life, the totality of views, ideas and beliefs shared by individuals within a group of people. Culture is learned, it includes language, values, norms and customs.

- Understanding cultural context helps us to develop products and communication that is better targeted to the local market.

- As you will see from the report, the basic task of holidays is to 'help you escape from your daily life!'

- You therefore need to know a little bit about German culture to understand how this can be done.

- Consumers respond to values that are culturally ingrained and have a fundamental personal meaning for them as human beings. An understanding of the cultural context in the market therefore enables you to better understand the basic needs they seek to satisfy (i.e. the motivational segments in this report).

General understanding of German culture

• German culture can generally be characterised as being rather formal, with a high degree of discipline. People strive for stability and security.

• Germany is also a rather normative society, fitting in and adapting to the general rules and habits is considered important. Social pressure to behave according to the norms is also rather high, which is expressed in social conventions, but also in fashion and style.

• These norms can have positive aspects as they offer security and constitute an anchor point for how to behave, but they also mark limits and boundaries from which it is hard to deviate, e.g. when it comes to treating such norms less strictly, taking a more intuitive approach to styles, etc.

• Striving for (financial) advancement, combined with high confidence in technological superiority are also typical. Hence, technology and engineering are considered important.

• All this leads to the fact that motivations of control, protection and looking for security are rather strongly represented in Germany, while people find it difficult to apply a more open, intuitive and playful attitude.
General perspective on the role of holidays in German culture

Holidays allow Germans to:

- Escape from daily routine and demands, to let go and enjoy all the things that are normally not on the agenda.
- It is a moment/period of time to break with routine and normal responsibilities.
- Being someone different, entering a world that is different from people’s daily lives, a place where one can act and feel different.
- To relax and recover from the fast pace and demands of modern life in order to feel invigorated and be able to cope with upcoming tasks.
- A means to broaden one’s horizon, to see things from a different perspective by getting to know new cultures, countries, people, customs and ways of life, etc. In a sense, to be humble and to put one’s own way of life into perspective.

There is a trend towards short breaks, Germans find it natural to go on holidays to European cities, which has become much more convenient (€ = single currency) and affordable (cheaper flights).

However, short breaks to more exclusive places/destinations (e.g. shopping in London, wellness/spa in Davos, Switzerland, etc.), are also a means of showing that one is well-off, i.e. a kind of status symbol for some people.

Key learning

- A moment/time of year to escape from daily routine and to enjoy a feeling of freedom and easiness, being free from responsibilities.

Source: Qualitative focus groups
Core elements in holidays abroad

Germans have some clear requirements when it comes to holidays abroad:

- First of all, versatility, people want to have a great variety of different activities they can potentially enjoy, e.g. nature, culture, sports activities, sightseeing, entertainment etc. These should be easily accessible, within easy reach, ideally activities that can be enjoyed in close proximity to their holiday destination.

- Accommodation is quite important to Germans, they seek comfortable and cozy accommodation, which serves as a kind of retreat for relaxation purposes, where they can unwind, spend ‘quality-time’ with others. Although holidays are a means of escaping the grind of daily routine/ letting go, etc., Germans also need a place where they can feel they are in good hands, a shelter to withdraw to, something neat and orderly.

- Open-minded and sociable people with a welcoming and friendly attitude to getting to know the native culture and habits, to celebrate life, and they make new acquaintances easily.

- In principle, the sociability aspect is a highly important ingredient. People seek casual contact either with locals or other tourists, the opportunity to meet others and not spend their holidays in isolation.

- Weather builds the general framework for the holiday, Germans usually seek a reliable climate (not necessarily hot weather but rainy weather is certainly not the norm), which allows them to spend time comfortably outdoors and they are not forced to equip themselves against nasty conditions.

Key learning

- Versatility is key, a combination of aspects such as nature, culture, etc., which should be combined with a welcoming attitude and stable weather conditions.
The role and meaning of activities on holidays abroad

Although holidays abroad represent relaxation, forgetting about the responsibilities and obligations of daily life, becoming a different person, letting go, adopting a different mentality, being more nonchalant, carefree etc., they are also about exploring new things, doing things that are normally not on the agenda.

Thus people generally want to have the opportunity to experience new activities and impressions, they are eager to find a destination that offers variation.

Since holidays abroad usually have a duration of a minimum of two weeks, a limited or unvaried range of activities is unacceptable. It is important for people that they can potentially take advantage of a wide range of activities, including:

- Culture, interesting cities within easy reach (for sightseeing, shopping, eating, entertainment, museums).
- Sporty and fun activities or a combination of both that people can do spontaneously with the kids or alone.
- Nature, not too rough or extreme but still accessible, so that people can explore it on their own without feeling insecure and unsafe.
- Sociable and convivial activities, enjoying some moments of cheerful togetherness, e.g. going out for dinner, eating together.

General decision-making process: Where to go and what to do

There is no general pattern for how the process is structured. First the basics are determined: When and who? Then, different influences come into play such as:

- Third parties, friends, relatives, colleagues, who share their experience with regard to travel destinations and bring in new ideas and proposals.

- Travel diaries/travelogues in magazines, on TV, internet, etc. that arouse people’s interest in destinations abroad.

- Sometimes, people have an opportunity to use friends or relatives’ accommodation abroad at a reasonable rate, which is a strong influencer.

- Climate and weather is another important dimension within the overall decision-making process, especially for longer holidays when Germans don’t want to take any risks.

When a destination is chosen, people check the financial feasibility of the project, some prefer to spend holidays in neighbouring countries since they can travel by car which makes the journey less expensive. This is especially relevant for families with children.

People without children book noncyclical (low season), they want to avoid higher costs, hot weather, crowds of tourists.

As for short breaks, special cheap flight offers can influence or even trigger the decision to visit a European city.

Source: Qualitative focus groups
Holidays vs. breaks abroad

HOLIDAYS

- Longer holidays are carefully planned, Germans usually take time planning their main holiday (normally two to three weeks during summer for families with children).
- Holidays are traditionally a ‘family affair’, the planning and decision-making process is democratic, i.e. the kids also have a say and voice their wishes.
- For longer holidays, weather and climate are a decisive factor, many Germans don’t want to take risks in this respect and sunny Southern destinations are often therefore preferred.
- Holidays should always include elements of nature, landscape, rejuvenation, etc. while breaks are frequently linked to culture, sightseeing, shopping, etc.

BREAKS

- Breaks abroad have become much more common and quite popular recently, people enjoy visiting foreign cities, to get a taste of a different culture/lifestyle for a short while, to experience savoir-vivre, etc.
- Usually a mix of sightseeing and shopping. Due to the affordability of flying to European destinations, breaks abroad have become more popular than they were previously.
- Often quite spontaneous, e.g. coming across a cheap flight/special offer (e.g. Lufthansa newsletter) by chance and deciding to take a trip over the weekend or bank holiday weekend.
- Breaks are perceived as being busier, they are less about relaxation, people often have a full schedule (visiting relevant spots, shopping), which they like to work off.
- People with children usually benefit from breaks as a time to spend some time with their partner, leaving the kids at home and enjoying some ‘me-time’ again.

Source: Qualitative focus groups
In the research, we found that there are some common denominators across all types of holidays and across all segments:

Holidays abroad must always help you to escape from your daily life!

The core of all holidays is about:

- Escapism
- New and interesting places
- Being together

All holidays must fulfil these criteria irrespective of the type of holiday

Items that appear in bold = over index = is unique to the subject, i.e. differs from other subjects. I.e. if Norway has a high index on an item, this item makes Norway different from other destinations.

Items on the list = many respondents have ticked this = core of the subject at hand.
Norway has a fragmented brand footprint.

Instead of just looking at the overall perception of Norway, what we do here is allocate people’s perception of Norway to their dominant idea of each segment. The slide shows an index number that indicates the fit between Norway and each segment compared with competitors.

Fit (from -1 to +1) of the perceptual profile of Norway with what each of the segments are looking for. A score of 1 means that Norway delivers exactly what the segment is looking for; a score of -1 means Norway represents the exact opposite of what people are looking for in that segment.

GLOBAL CONCLUSIONS
Key Conclusions - Across all three markets

Despite a slightly differentiated position compared to competing destinations, Norway does not attract a lot of (repeat) visitors

- Norway fails to attract a lot of visitors
  - The share of people that have ever visited Norway is low compared to other destinations.
  - Repeat visiting is also lower than average.

- Norway has a fragmented brand footprint and does not clearly 'own' any motivational segment.
  - Across all markets, Norway is often associated with Exploration and Broadening your Horizon.
  - But the strength of this association is relatively weak.
5b. Key Conclusions
- Germany
Key Conclusions - Germany

1. Reach minimum level of generic holiday expectations

2. Positioning of Norway: Norway is mostly associated with Exploration and broadening your horizon

Key Conclusions – Germany

1. Reach minimum level of generic expectations

- A social, less isolated experience
  - ‘Populate’ towns and landscapes
  - Communicate lively towns and villages
  - Isolation as a choice, not a given

- An easy, comfortable travel experience
  - Easy booking
  - Visualising the holiday: knowing how to travel, where to go
  - Make it easy to travel around
  - Portray friendly 'Scandinavian' people
Key Conclusions – Germany

1. Reach minimum level of generic expectations

- Local cuisine
  - Importance of local food and drink
  - Also a good variety of contemporary international cuisine

- Offer a wide range of activities and interesting sights
  - Not just the more extreme and niche activities that Norway is currently most associated with

- Importance of cultural differences between the two countries
  - It is not like home!
  - Rich experiences that help you escape from your hectic daily life
Key Conclusions – Germany

2. Positioning of Norway: Norway is mostly associated with Exploration and Broadening your horizon

Exploration

- Addresses 16% (the segment volume of Exploration) of all German holidays abroad
  - 14% in North Germany and 19% in East Germany
- Already the most important reason why Germans travel to Norway
- Decent perceptual fit
- Competition is relatively weak
  - China, Canada, New Zealand and Scotland are all associated with this area, but none of them as a strong perceptual or behavioural leader
  - Proximity is a key advantage in relation to destinations further afield

Broadening your Horizon

- Addresses 21% (the segment volume of Exploration) of all German holidays abroad
  - 19% in North Germany and 23% in East Germany
- One of the biggest segment overall in Germany
- Decent perceptual fit
- No country “own” this motivational segment

Harmony

Description
Harmony
- Cultivated, contemporary and caring

Segment core:
- The basic motivation for going on holidays is to RECONNECT WITH A SENSE OF HARMONY AND BALANCE, relaxation and recreation.
- A holiday abroad provides opportunities for self–pampering, light-heartedness and lifting spirits. Provides a sense of reconnecting with the whole world, belonging to a broader community.
- A holiday abroad guarantees pleasurable/indulgent experience, lots of new and bright impressions.
- Experiences/satisfaction are key: Shift of mood and emotions in positive direction, restores the sense of harmony and balance within oneself and one’s environment, provides a wide variety of new sensorial experiences – try, touch, sense. Restaurants, local food, cities, shopping etc.
- Enjoy the dedicated service provided, the thoughtful care of staff at their holiday resort, to let themselves be fully pampered, helping them to escape from their stressful lives, to unwind and leave all responsibilities behind.

Routine

Description
Routine
- Predictable, practical and structured

Segment core:
- The basic motivation for going on holidays is to have things much as they are at home. They bring their normal world into the new world. This could be a cottage holiday or visiting friends but also sun and beach.
- No surprises, practical and structured holidays, so that they can relax and recharge. They often don’t have a lot of time, so the holiday needs to be structured. They also often travel with small children and hence need to feel in control.
- They deal with the escapism of holidays in a restrained manner. The new world makes them feel insecure and they don’t know what to expect or what they need to be aware of. They therefore try to gather as much information as possible before the holiday.
- As they need to have a certain sense of security, they usually stay in one place during their holidays. Staying in different places would be a constant reminder of their own insecurity.

Most important differentiators:
- Personality:
  - Predictable
  - Structured
  - Practical
  - Friendly

How to read the scorecards

Items at the top of the list = many respondents have ticked this = core of the subject

Items at the top of the list in bold = over index = is unique to the subject, i.e. differs from other subjects. I.e. if Norway has a high index on an item, this item makes Norway different from other destinations.

Items at the bottom of the list underlined = low rating, but high index
